Very refreshing and yummy

September 22, 2007

This is just an illustrations no animals get hurt or harm...

OrthomolecularIf nothing fix why don't try the alternative...

September 21, 2007

Orthomolecular is a term that comes from ortho, which is Greek for "correct" or "right," and "molecule," which is the simplest structure that displays the characteristics of a compound. So it literally means the "right molecule."

Two-time Nobel Prize winner, and molecular biologist, Professor Linus Pauling, Ph.D., coined the term "Orthomolecular" in his 1968 article "Orthomolecular

Psychiatry" in the journal Science."

Orthomolecular medicine describes the practice of preventing and treating disease by providing the body with optimal amounts of substances which are natural to the body.

InstructablesDo something different

September 20, 2007

Instructables is a web-based documentation platform where passionate people share what they do and how they do it, and learn from and collaborate with others.

The seeds of Instructables germinated at the MIT Media Lab as the future founders of Squid Labs built places to share their projects and help others. Read more about the history...

To create a new Instructable, comment on someone else's Instructable, or do lots of other cool things, you need to create a free account. We also have a new guided tour.

Paint Net

Better than MS Paint

September 18, 2007

Paint.NET is image and photo manipulation software designed to be used on computers that run XP, Server 2003 or Vista.

It started development at Washington State University as an undergraduate senior design project mentored by Microsoft, and is currently being maintained by some of the alumni that originally worked on it. It is meant to be a free replacement for the MS Paint software that comes with all Windows operating systems.

Stray Cinema

No stray animals being harm

September 17, 2007

Stray Cinema is an open source film. Here you can download and re-edit raw footage from a film shot in New Zealand. This will provide people from all over the world with an opportunity to create their own version of the film.

Stray Cinema will navigate this film experiment out of the online digital world and into the 'real world' with a screening of the top five films in New Zealand. The footage shot in New Zealand is the second open source film provided by Stray Cinema.
